Individuals with a passion for art and antiques have yet another reason to attend the 27th annual Baltimore Summer Antiques Show. This year, in addition to showcasing the collections of over 550 of the finest international dealers, the show will provide a free educational lecture series. Speakers include Dr. Gary Vikan, director of the Walters Art Museum; Michael Teller, founder and president of TK Asian Antiquities; and Stiles Colwill, president of STC Interiors. "It has always been our goal to provide an environment that fosters the understanding and appreciation of antiques in addition to offering an enormous selection of items," said Kris Charamonde co-owner and show manager.

Sichuan sculptures from the Han Dynasty will be one of the topics addressed in the lecture series.
